Elphor Va.

Prodam Records catnrBC029

Launched in 2019, the neo-industrial project Elphor Va operates under a definitive creed: There is no planet B.

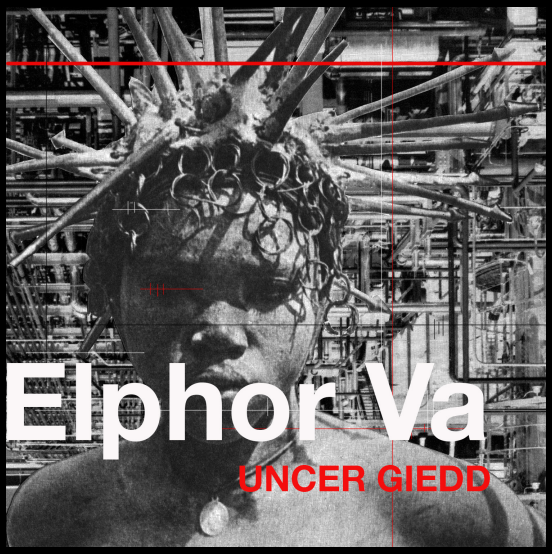

Elphor Va breaks relentless salvos of noisy dark mush with whimsical dark ambient passages. And then they advance again. With a targeted attack on the head and legs. With hard-hitting industrial, rhythmic noise. A trouser-leg flapping genre that ends on ‘core’

Musically, inspiration is drawn from live jams, field recordings, analog, digital and modular synthesizers, live vocals, off topic sample material and moth-eaten transistor radios.
Their style leans into alienation without ever becoming obscene, violent, or vulgar. It is best described as a tendency toward the absurd, the surreal, and the untamed play of the subconscious mind.

Elphor Va stands out with their visuals, often based on Niko's hand-cut collages. Sometimes they are combined with self-shot video, footage from times long past, or possibly input from other artists.

They explore the boundaries between music, visual and performance art. The visual artist duo has been operating modestly but present under the radar for several years as they carefully build their repertoire.

Now Prodam Records founder Eric Van Wonterghem has curated a special 6-track EP selection to showcase the depth, friction, and dark beauty of the Elphor Va universe.

One of their tracks has been remixed by Agathon Scrolls and after remixing Phasenmensch for the renowned HANDS Productions label, the 'Elphor Va' project was instantly ignited.
